

HT Supreme ANS10 £79.99

A pronounced hexagonal shape and significant chamfering help the Supremes skim over trail obstacles, but also allow your feet to rock over the edges more than on other pedals here, making for a less rock-solid stance. There's a generous concavity to the platform though (2mm front-to-rear, 1mm side-to-side), which cups your foot nicely and, combined with the thin pins, meant we had no complaints about our feet pattering around. The pins thread in from underneath and washers can be used to adjust their height from 5mm to 6mm. With 12mm of axle extension between the crank arm and pedal body, they give a comfortable stance on the bike, without being excessively wide. At 376g they're the lightest set on test and come (in a wide range of anodised colours) at a pretty competitive price too.

www.ison-distribution.com

